

Sterling Adds Super Mid-Size Jet to Charter Fleet

Citation Sovereign Offers Range, Short Runway Flexibility and Comfort

MILWAUKEE, WI – Sterling Aviation, a leading business aircraft management and charter company headquartered at Milwaukee’s Mitchell International Airport with a second full-service base under development in Naples, Florida, now offers an important new option in top-quality charter service.

A recently added super mid-size 2007 model Citation Sovereign offers non-stop transcontinental performance with the ability to operate from shorter runways than most mid-size jets. The brand new stand up cabin, with fully reclining seats and a large private restroom, provides total comfort for as many as nine passengers. The Milwaukee-based Sovereign’s generous baggage capacity of 135 cu. ft. rivals that of many large-cabin jets.

“Sterling’s Sovereign is truly a premium jet, with features found in few other aircraft of its size,” said Roger Banaszak, vice president of marketing and sales. “It complements our other Citation jets, Hawkers and Learjets to position Sterling as one of the nation’s premier operators of mid-size and super mid-size aircraft.”

For longer range, including international travel, Sterling’s fleet also includes two ten-passenger Challenger large-cabin aircraft. Small-cabin and turboprop aircraft are available for shorter trips.

“Our 15 impeccably maintained aircraft offer clients a complete range of options to fulfill all business and personal charter missions,” said Rob Gort, Sterling’s president and chief operating officer.
